FOREWORD

TOGETHER, WE'RE BUILDING THE FUTURE OF ORAL HEALTH.

Dear Practitioner,

The new European Medical Device Regulation (MDR) will soon come into force in Europe, impacting all medical devices, including dental rotary instruments. The aim of these regulations is to guarantee the safety and efficacy of medical devices marketed in the European Union throughout their life cycle.

As a manufacturer, Bien-Air has always been committed to maintaining the highest standards of quality and regulatory compliance. By choosing our products, you can be sure of working with devices that comply with the most stringent standards on the market, and we are already prepared to meet these requirements.

As a practitioner, these regulations mean increased responsibility for you: you become directly responsible for purchasing and maintaining the equipment you use. Beyond these standards, it's also important to think about product reparability.

That's why, at Bien-Air, we've integrated this philosophy into our design and manufacturing process. Our instruments are designed to be not only reliable and high-performance, but also repairable and reusable, thus extending their life and minimizing their environmental impact.

Bien-Air is committed to your safety and that of your patients. To meet the demands of the market while satisfying your equipment requirements. For even greater peace of mind, opt for our SafeInvest maintenance contract on the back cover: your instruments belong to you, and we take care of them for you.

Together, we're building the future of oral health.

The Bien-Air Dental team.
